

Each sunset, I wait for the night to light up high above me. Light by light,
the night gets bright.

2

At bedtime, I shut off my light, lie still, and rest while the night lights shine on me.

Again and again, night lights rise and set. Each day
the lights change, growing bright and then growing dim.

4

Far away, that light zips left then right in the night.

Mule Has a Problem

"Blacksmith," Mule begged.
"I need a U-shaped shoe.
Can you make it?"

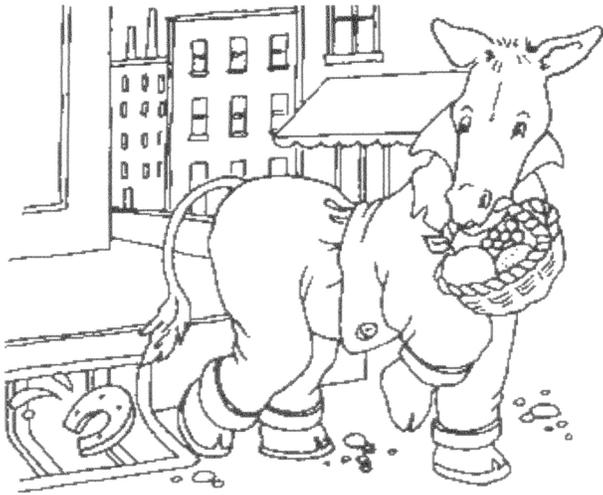

6

"I can't trot on just three feet!" moaned Mule.
"Glue on this plate," Pig replied.

3

Mule trotted down Main Street, when—oops!—a shoe flew off! Clank! It fell down that rain drain.

2

“No problem!” the blacksmith replied. “I am not late for my date!” said Mule.

“This plate will crack!” Mule told Pig. “It will make me trip. Then I will be late.”

“Why not use my bag as a shoe?” Cat asked. “Excuse me, Cat,” Mule said. “But that bag is now crinkling my new suit.”
